My understanding is that MPD data is in fact available/does exist by address for homicides and rapes, but they just have a policy against providing that data by address. I would think Major Newell could get a release on the data as long as we're not going to public specific addresses.

As you can see, the census tract data question get a little complicated. Dr. Madden is looking into this too.

Any MPD data that I am able to pull directly I can run joins to census tracts as long as we have the address locations. For example, data I pull from TIBRS I don't have the address locations (unless we're looking at their victim data tables), but the data directly from MPD I can include the addresses. However, when pulling from MPD, active homicides and rapes are not available for download; therefore, not included. So, the answer is yes and no- just depends on what you would like looked at specifically by census tracts.

Sorry, with so many data sources and downloading options, the answers end up not being a simple one- just want you to know what is available.

Here you go.

On another matter, do you have access to crime data in Memphis by census track?

Commissioner Gibbons,

The attached PDF contains the data that you requested. I have briefly reviewed this and the numbers are higher than the TBI data. We will need to look into this further.

John,

Can you have someone pull the corresponding numbers for victims of violent crimes for the years listed on page three of this attachment. The numbers from TBI (page three) are for victims rather than Incidents. I believe that we have provided the Commission numbers of Incidents rather than victims. You may already have someone working on this. Dr. Madden may have requested this a week or two ago.

Thank you,
